Change Agents Completes Phase 2 of its Catch-Up Agentic AI Video Studio Platform; Development led by Caylent with Funding from Amazon Web Services Grant*The agentic AI video platform is designed to autonomously create and distribute short-form videos at scale for podcasters and social media influencers

FREEHOLD, N.J., August 31, 2026— Change Agents Corporation (Nasdaq: CHGA) (“Change Agents” or the “Company”), a developer of agentic artificial intelligence (“AI”) software solutions advancing into AI-enabled autonomous air surveillance and air defense counter-unmanned aerial systems (“C-UAS”) technologies, today announced the completion of the Phase 2 development of its Catch-Up agentic AI video studio platform in collaboration with Caylent, Inc., an Amazon Web Services (“AWS”) Premier Tier Services Partner. Beta testing of the enhanced platform is expected to begin in September 2026.

The Phase 2 Catch-Up platform is intended to enable social media influencers, podcasters, and digital content creators to effortlessly generate personalized short-form video content across multiple platforms with minimal technical expertise.

We plan to begin beta testing the Catch-Up platform in September 2026 to evaluate platform performance, user experience, and scalability in efforts to advance Catch-Up toward broader commercialization.

“The completion of Phase 2 represents an important milestone in the evolution of the Catch-Up platform and our broader agentic AI strategy,” said Michael Mathews, Director of Change Agents Corporation “The support of AWS and development expertise of Caylent have enabled us to transform Catch-Up from a manually configured application into what we believe is an agentic AI video studio designed to autonomously generate personalized short-form videos for content creators that publish across multiple social media platforms. Beta testing represents the next critical step as we look to validate the platform with users and advance toward commercial launch. Catch-Up is an important component of our current strategy -- to build a portfolio of scalable agentic AI software platforms targeting large commercial markets, with a SaaS model designed to generate recurring subscription revenue and support scalable growth as adoption increases.”
